COLLEGE ADMISSIONS TESTING

Seniors who plan to attend a four-year college and have not taken a college admissions test need to do so very soon. Those who have tested may choose to retake either test in order to try for a higher score. The registration packets for the SAT I, SAT II Subject, and ACT tests are now available in the Guidance Office or you can register online at www.collegeboard.com/sat or www.act.org. You may check the college catalogs or talk with your counselor if you are unsure which test(s) to take. The high school code number for Lower Cape May Regional High School is 310210. Students planning to attend a community college will not need to take the SAT or the ACT.

The testing schedule for the 2011 - 12 school year is listed below.

ASVAB TESTING

There are opportunities available to young men and women who can qualify for today's ARMED FORCES. Each branch of the military offers programs of training and technical schooling as well as an excellent college scholarship program. Any senior interested in taking the vocational test for the Armed Services needs to sign up for the test in the Guidance Office. The test is free and will be administered at LCMRHS on November 15th.

ADMISSIONS: EARLY DECISION OPTION

If you are considering early decision for admission, check immediately with your college of choice for their specific requirements. These deadlines are rapidly approaching and you must plan now if this option is important to you.

COLLEGE APPLICATIONS

Now is when you should be in contact with colleges, securing their applications, filling out their applications, and submitting the different kinds of paperwork required. All colleges have deadlines, some in the fall and others early in the new year. Check your catalogs and don't be caught by a passed deadline. It is your responsibility to determine where you want to apply and what the specific requirements are. Information is available in the Counselors' Office to assist you.

Note: It is important that you give teachers and/or counselors 2-3 weeks notice if you want them to write a letter of recommendation. Please plan ahead so you won't miss any deadlines.

COMMON APPLICATION

The Common College Application is available through the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Students need only to complete this application once when applying to any of the participating independent colleges and universities who utilize this form. The list of schools using the common application is available in the Guidance Office.

 We now have a partnership with Common App and Naviance that allows us to send out transcripts and letters of recommendation electronically. If you are applying to a Common App school, please let your Guidance Counselor know.

ATTENTION SENIOR BOYS

You need to register with Selective Service. It is not the Army, it's not the draft, no one's going to your house-it's just one of the things a man's gotta do. If you are 18, you have to register within 30 days of your 18th birthday. It's the law! If you are 17, you can submit registration information and when you're 18, you'll be registered automatically. Registering keeps you eligible for Federal college loans, grants, and student aid in most states. You can register on-line at www.sss.gov, you can fill out a registration card at any U.S. Post Office or you can send back the registration card you may have received in the mail. If you have any questions, check with your Guidance Counselor.

WHAT DO THEY LOOK AT?

Admissions officers consider these factors in roughly the following order of importance:

1. Grade Point Average/Difficulty in Curriculum
2. SAT I & SAT II scores
3. Class Rank
4. Application essays
5. Extracurricular activities
6. Recommendations
7. Interviews
8. Intangibles

Of course, every college is different. The larger the school, the less time it has to spend with your application (sometimes less than five minutes). Big state schools rarely reach number three on this list. Small schools may look past weak grades or test scores if they see something special about you.

COLLEGE VISITS AT LCMR

The following schools (next page) will be visiting LCMRHS on the dates and at the times listed. There could be additions to this list after the newsletter was sent out so check the bulletin board in Guidance. The bulletin board has the sign-up sheets for the school meetings, but you can also sign up for a visit through NAVIANCE. Sign up and you will receive a pass on the day of the school's visit. This is your opportunity to meet with a representative from the school and to ask any questions you might have.

REMEMBER SCHOOLS ARE BEING ADDED TO THIS LIST DAILY SO KEEP CHECKING THE BOARD AND LISTENING TO THE ACCOUNCEMENTS.

College Application Reminders

1. Register and take the SAT or ACT as quickly as possible, if needed. NOW!
2. After investigation, narrow your college list to a manageable number. NOW!
3. Write, call, fax, or go on-line with each college to request information and applications for admissions, scholarships, financial aid, housing, etc. NOW!
4. Complete and submit application for admissions well in advance of deadlines. Do the same for housing, scholarships, and financial aid. SOON!
5. Attend the Financial Aid Meeting on January 11, 2012 at LCMRHS. The FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) will be distributed at the meeting and will be available in the Guidance Office following the meeting. This form is to be mailed on or after January 1, 2012. (Note: some private schools use the CSS Profile application also. Follow your school's instructions)

Remember: The best source of information about a particular college is their own catalog. Also, the best source of financial aid information is the Financial Aid office of the college to which you are applying.

Tips for a Killer Essay

With more colleges asking unique essay questions, the student's job of writing an interesting essay has become more challenging and more time consuming. Those students applying to multiple colleges are no longer able to simply rehash the standard question for each school. Here are seven tips to guide you through the evolving world of the college essay.

1. Treat the essay seriously, but be creative and original.
2. Allow yourself at least a month to think about, write, review, and revise your essay.
3. Outline your ideas first so you know where you're going.
4. Make sure you answer the question completely, providing specific examples to back up your points.
5. Use your own voice, and don't just respond with what you think a college would like to hear.
6. Get a second opinion on your first draft from a friend, family member, or teacher.
7. Proofread carefully, and submit a neatly typed version.

Test Strategy

•Get Familiar: Learn the content and format of the test

•Practice, practice, practice!!

•Get your rest: Get plenty of sleep the night before the test, and leave yourself enough time to get to the test site. Arrive at least 30 minutes before the exam and bring necessary materials to the test site: admission ticket, photo identification, several pre-sharpened pencils with good erasers, and a calculator.

•During the test remember to:

- Read the directions and questions carefully
- Pace yourself
- Answer easy questions first
- Use logical reasoning and process of elimination for tougher questions
- Review your work
- Be precise in marking your answer document
- Erase wrong answers completely

•The most important advice:

Stay cool, calm, and collected.

Don't let the test stress you out!

SAT vs. ACT

The road to college can be a confusing and hectic one. Choosing the right admissions test to take—SAT or ACT—doesn't have to be. While most colleges across the country accept scores from either test, the SAT and ACT are significantly different, measuring different skills. Check with your guidance counselor and preferred colleges, then use the information below to decide which test is right for you.

SAT

- No science section
- No trigonometry section
- Vocabulary emphasized
- Non multiple-choice questions included
- Guess penalty
- No English grammar
- Math accounts for 50% of your score
- Questions go from easy to hard in most sections
- All of your SAT scores reported to colleges

ACT

- Science reasoning section
- Math sections include trigonometry
- Vocabulary less important
- Entirely multiple choice
- No guessing penalty
- English grammar tested
- Math accounts for 25% of your score
- Easy and hard questions mixed within sections
- Report scores only from the test dates you choose

BACKYARD SCHOLARSHIPS AND HOW TO FIND THEM

By Gen & Kelly Tanabe authors of Get Into Any College: Secrets Of Harvard Students, Get Free Cash For College: Scholarship Secrets of Harvard Students, and founders of www.SuperCollege.com where you'll find more tips, secrets, and strategies. Copyright 2000.

Each year there are large scholarships awarded by nationally recognized companies such as Coca-Cola, Tylenol, and USA Today. While you should definitely apply to these awards, keep in mind that competition is stiff and of the thousands who enter, only a few will win. While applying these national jackpots you should not overlook one of the best sources of scholarships—your own backyard.

Think about all of groups, clubs, businesses, churches and organizations in your community. Each of these is a potential source for scholarships. Plus, because of their limited marketing budgets, many are not widely publicized. That means fewer applicants and higher odds of winning.

There are probably some great local scholarships that are just waiting to be discovered. Here's how to find them:

School Activities. One fringe benefit of participating in activities might be a scholarship sponsored by the organization. Inquire with the officers or advisors of the organization about scholarship funds. Bands, newspapers, academic clubs, athletic organizations, and service organizations often have scholarships that are awarded to outstanding members.

Community Organizations. Don't limit yourself to only organizations that you belong to. Community groups will often sponsor scholarships that are open to all students who live in the community. For example, local Rotary and Lions clubs often offer scholarships for outstanding students in the community whether or not their parents are members. They view scholarship programs as a way of serving their community. Open a phone book and call the five largest organizations in your area. Chances are that at least one will offer a scholarship.

Employers. Many businesses that employ young people offer scholarships as a way to reward students like you who both study and work. Ask your manager if your employer has a scholarship fund and how you can apply.

Parent's Employer. Companies often award scholarships to the children of their employees as a benefit for their employment. Your parents should speak with someone in their Human Resources department about scholarships and other educational programs offered by their company.

Parent's Union. Some unions sponsor scholarships for the children of their members. Your parents should speak with the union officers about scholarships and other educational programs sponsored by the union.

Parent's Organizations. Are your parents involved in civic or other local organizations? These organizations may offer scholarships for members. Ask your parents to find out.

Church Or Religious Organizations. Religious organizations may provide scholarships for members. If you or your parents are members of a religious organization, check with the leaders to see if a scholarship is offered.

Local Government. Some cities and counties provide scholarships specifically designated for local students. Often, local city council members and state representatives have a scholarship fund. Even if you didn't vote for them, call their offices and ask if they offer a scholarship.

Local Businesses. Local business owners who want to see students in their community succeed often set up scholarship funds as a way to thank their customers and customers' children. Contact your local chamber of commerce to see if there are local businesses that offer scholarships for student in the community.

Internet. One of the benefits of online scholarship directories is that they can be updated at any time. Thus, if you search an online scholarship directory you can find up-to-date information on new scholarships.

Local scholarships are truly the hidden backyard gems of financial aid. Students often find the greatest success with smaller, local scholarships. You'd be surprised how quickly the awards add up.
